Michael Leahy's Porn Nation Outreaches a hit on Chicago Campuses

8 campuses, 3 days, 1 man doing a multimedia presentation about the effects pornography and sex can have on us. Our team had tried crazy things before, but never anything like this. From October 30 to November 1 we ran around the city and suburbs doing last minute promotion with our students, setting up sound and video equipment, and getting Michael Leahy, a self proclaimed recovering sex addict, to his next presentation.

Michael travels around the country sharing his story about loosing a 15 year marriage because of his addiction to pornography and how his relationship with Jesus helped him to overcome it. Our staff and students worked hard to promote and set up Porn Nation events since last spring when we booked Michael to come to Chicago. Campuses were covered with flyers and sidewalk chalk for the week leading up to the events. The Facebook, a website that approximately 90% of college students use to network with their peers was used to promote and advertise the events as well. Several of our movements partnered with other Christian groups on campus and several received funding from their school to bring Porn Nation to their campus.

In total about 800 Chicago students, including around 100 at both Loyola and the University of Chicago, campuses I work on, attended Porn Nation events and were exposed to the Gospel through Michael's story. Please pray for us as we follow up with students who responded to the outreaches.

Michael speaks to a reporter from Fox News Chicago after the Porn Nation event at Roosevelt University. To view the story and coverage by other Chicago media outlets online visit www.chicagocru.com.
